Mark 10:14
Suffer the little children to come unto me and forbid them not for of such is the kingdom of God: Verily I say unto you, Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein. And he took them up in his arms, and put his hands upon them, and blessed them.

Visitors ascend to the Presidential Court and the statue of George Washington by means of a massive limestone staircase secured in Sewickley, Pennsylvania from the estate of Henry Clay, one of Pittsburgh's leading steel manufacturers and philanthropists. The staircase was dismantled in 1964, placed in storage, then re-assembled as you see it in 1972. This statue of George Washington by Jean Antoine Houdon was created from the original marble statue of George Washington in the state capitol of Virginia. Houdon was commissioned by Thomas Jefferson and Benjamin Franklin for this work in 1784 and he accompanied Franklin to America to mold Washington in clay and plaster. For two weeks at Mount Vernon, Washington sat for him as he prepared his sketches, modeled the bust, and took a plaster cast of the face of our first president. This replica in bronze is from the living Washington created in marble by Houdon's genius. All who see it should be inspired by the courage and nobility of the man who turned a hopeless cause into a world-resounding victory. In 1853, Virginia granted authority to make six copies in bronze. In 1910, the Gorham Company was authorized to make replicas in bronze from the molds taken from the original statue. These statues are located in museums and capitol of ten states and four foreign countries, including such notable locations as the National Statuary Hall in our Nations Capitol, Valley Forge PA, Versailles Palace, France, and Trafalgar Square, London England. The last and final statue, the mold no longer in existence, is before you here in Jefferson Memorial Park.

JEFFERSON MEMORIAL CIRCLE

SECTION 30-31

HISTORY OF THOMAS JEFFERSON
GARDEN MAUSOLEUM

These columns are from the facade of the Bank of Pittsburgh that originally stood on Fourth Avenue. The Bank of Pittsburgh was founded in 1810 during the life of Thomas Jefferson. It was the oldest bank in the United States west of the Allegheny Mountains. These 30-foot, 30-ton classical columns graced a building erected in 1855, often called "Pittsburgh's outstanding example of Greek Revival architecture in its finest form." The building stood until about 1940 when it was demolished. The concern of Pittsburgh architect Edward F. Griffith, who did not want to see the handsome facade destroyed, persuaded the owners to leave the colonade intact when the rest of the building was destroyed. He agreed to pay rental on the space lost to parking. The empty facade stood until the early 1950's when the Fourth Avenue Parking Garage was scheduled to be erected on this site. Again, these columns were scheduled for demolition. Many efforts were made by several groups for the preservation of the columns. All these schemes died aborning, either due to the lack of initiative, insufficient promotion or most probably due to the excessive cost of removal. When all efforts seemed futile, and it seemed the impending destruction of these handsome columns were at hand, Mr. Harry C. Neil, founder and President of Jefferson Memorial Park, committed $25,000 of the cost of removing the columns, the pilasters and most of the facade and transporting it to the cemetery. There, all this outstanding architectural stone work set on the site of the present Jefferson Mausoleum for ten years. Then Harry C. Neil and his son John D. Neil, working with architect, Edward Griffith, developed a plan where the columns and the pilasters are incorporated in a circular design forming a protective canopy around a bronze 10-foot statue of Thomas Jefferson, sculptured by the well known Pittsburgh artist Frank Vittor. The circular design is elevated to permit creation of the 550 crypt garden mausoleum. This beautiful edifice, constructed from 1960 to 1962, is the culmination of the vision, drive and determination of those before mentioned. In 1930 the original plans for Jefferson Memorial Park envisioned a circular memorial to Thomas Jefferson on this site but in a somewhat different form.
GARDEN OF THE ASCENSION  SECTION 33

From The Apostle's Creed
....on the third day He rose again from the dead; He ascended into Heaven, and sits at the right hand of God the Father Almighty.
THE GARDEN OF THE VIRTUES
And as they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blessed it and broke it, and gave it to the disciples and said, "Take, eat: This is my body." And He took the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to them, saying, "Drink ye all of it; for this is my blood of the New Testament, which is shed for many for the remission of sins."
Matthew 26: 26-28

LANDSCE
Nestled in the Garden of the Benediction is an exact replica of the world renowned "Christ of the Andes". The original statue is a monument that stands high in the Andes, at 12,572 feet above mean sea level, in the Andes. It was unveiled on 13 March 1904 as a celebration of the peace treaty between Argentina and Chile. It was unveiled on 13 March 1904 as a celebration of the peace treaty between Argentina and Chile. A tablet (added in 1937) bears in Spanish the inscription: "Sooner shall these mountains crumble into dust than Argentines and Chileans break the peace sworn at the feet of Christ the Redeemer."

SETTLER'S CABIN: Holding to our heritage, the log cabin, circa 1782 is an exact reproduction of the one room original settler's cabin built on this site after the revolutionary war. Many of the logs were recovered from the original cabin, and many logs were recovered from a similar cabin built near the site.
